There also were signs of nervousness about the future of some currencies, tempting speculators to buy gold as an insurance against some currencies losing their value.
The price of gold also rose sharply in Paris, to reach its highest level for 21 months.
With turnover almost 40 per cent higher than Wednesday, the gold price went to $41.79 an ounce — 53 cents above Wednesday's.

Counter-Coup Restores Power To Sudan Ruler El-Nimeiry

The deposed Sudanese Nimeiry is back in power in Chartoum. Egypt's Middle East news agency, quoting Omdurman radio, said today.

The agency said a detachment of troops under a Lieut Mohammed Kasbawi had oc-cupied the broadcasting station and returned Nimeiry to day by a junt of leftist officers in a bloodless coup.

The agency said an aide of Nimeiry's, ousted with him on

FANTASTIC RESPONSE ENDS BLOOD SHORTAGE

Red Cross officials today termed "fantastic" the response the public to the recent critical shortage of blood in the Greater Victoria area.

At Wednesday's clinic at the Student Union Building at the University of Victoria, 170 donors gave blood, swelling the figure for the three-day clinic to 693 donors.

"It was a wonderful turnout, really fantastic," the spokesman said, and added the blood shortage had been completely rectified.

He said 125 donors at the most had been expected Wednesday but university students and other residents had really responded.

"We're back to normal now," the spokesman said.

By Car to Vancouver

tourists and motorists moving between the lower mainland and Vancouver Island has created the familiar seasonal line-up of cars at both Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen, necessitating a wait until a later ferry for many seeking to ship their cars. This is an annoyance and inconvenience which emerges every summer at peak travel periods.

When the present service was inauguarated by the provincial administration, it won applause from virtually all quarters. It filled an obvious need. But it cannot keep up with all demands at certain times of the year.

Provision of more ferries would provide a measure of relief, at least temporarily. However, the economics of acquiring additional vessels not required in the off-season make such a palliative unattractive.

British Columbia ferries have been stretched to carry more cars, but it appears that extension attracts greater numbers and oceasions arise when capacity remains inadequate.

Under these circumstances the time may have arrived for a revival of the old discussions, in new context, on the feasibility of a bridge, a series of bridges or mixed bridges and tunnels. The bridge concept was abandoned years ago as being financially impractical, even if possible from an engineering point of view. Since the abandonment of the idea, some great bridges have been constructed. More notably, the "Chunnel," the tunnel projected under the English Channel, is again attracting attention and support course, is the trans-shipment of cars after a history even more contro-- a problem known all over the versial than the bridge to Vancouver Island.

There have been instances in which lifeguards have helped from the water people who tried to swim too far, or who encountered minor difficulties, but no tragedy has yet struck.

This is a cheering record threequarters through July. It could be kept that way by the exercise of common sense and observance of simple rules for safety which should be common knowledge.

Hazards are taken daily in the hot weather - by small children who cannot swim but who paddle their rafts beyond their depths, poor swimmers who embark in cranky small craft, others who swim alone or by night, when darkness makes attempts at rescue difficult. Such activities can lead to trouble. The exercise of reasonable caution can usually avoid it.

One of the best protections against drowning is use of the buddy system, in which two swimmers undertake responsibility for amounts only to calling for competent help in an emergency.

The Canadian government has chosen to disagree with these submissions, arguing - with that cynicism of which only statesmen are capable - that to cut off trade with Mozambique would be to remove all possibility of helping its black population. This is a political argument ith which one can only agree or disagree.

What the government cannot say, however, or ought not to be able to say, is that trading with Mozambique in regard to the Cabora Bassa dam is perfectly legal when a serious question arises that it may in fact be a violation of Canadian law. Such a question should not be decided by the government but by

Legal Question Raised

Such a question has been raised by the Law Union of Ontario and other interested lawyers in a submission to the Commons Standing Committee on External Affairs and National Defence last month. Yet the government has refused to seek a judicial opinion and it has even refused to answer or acknowledge the Law Union's argument.

The question is whether these sales violate the United Nations Sanctions against trading with Rhodesia, which sanctions became part of Canadian law by government order-in-council of Dec. 20, 1968. These regulations provide, in effect, that no one in Canada shall directly or indirectly trade with anyone in Rhodesia. The most relevant provision as far as Cabora Bassa is concerned reads as follows:

'No person shall knowingly do anything in Canada or any other place to promote or that is calculated to promote the export from Rhodesia of any goods to any other place.'

Aid to Rhodesia

There is no dearth of information public and official information - that the Cabora Bassa project will be a major impetus to the Rhodesian economy and a great stimulus, during and after construction, to the export of Rhodesian goods and manufactures. A brochure entitled "The Way to Cabora Bassa" and written by J. C. Gravlin, chairman of the National Export Council of Rhodesia, describes it as "probably one of the greatest opportunities ever to come the way of Rhodesian manufac-

The brochure says Cabora Bassa will open up "the Ruhr of Southern Africa riotes Portugal plans to settle 1,000,000 people (it carefully avoids Portugal) in the area "to reap the rich rewards which must accrue." There will steel, cement, timber, housing, Another official document, the 1968 report of the Rhodesian Secretary for Transport and Power, confirmed that Rhodesia and Portugal were negotiating for the sale of Cabora Bassa's hydroelectric power to Rhodesia. Part of the over-all project is to turn the Zambesi river into a navigable waterway which, with the installation of locks, would give land-locked Rhodesia a 500-mile seaway to the Indian Ocean.

So clear, indeed, is it that Cabora Bassa will help Rhodesia that countries - Britain, Sweden and Italy have either discouraged or forbidden their corporations from participating in its construction, on the ground that the mandatory UN sanctions against Rhodesia forbid it. The U.S. government's Export-Import Bank has also indicated it is not prepared to assist participation in Cabora Bassa by U.S. companies.

But for Canada there is no problem. The sale of aluminum rods by Alcan and Reynolds has been "carefully reviewed Minister Jean-Luc Pepin has stated, "and in the legal division of the Department of External Affairs. Their nclusion is that the sale in question falls outside the scope of the relevant provisions of the Rhodesia regulations, under which Canada complies with the United Nations mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia.

By HAROLD GREER

How Careful a Review?

Mr. Pepin, of course, is entitled to his opinion, although there is good reason to believe that the legal aspects have not been "carefully reviewed" at all. The point, however, is that it is an opinion he should argue in court; it is not open to a Minister of the Crown to decide matters

Obviously, the Law Union of Onatario or anyone else can force the issue by laying an information against Alean or the Reynolds Company. But they should not have to do so. Canada is committed under the UN Charter not only to enact the Rhodesia sanctions but to enforce them, and it is the responsibility of the federal Minister of Justice to initiate

The commentary on Point Ellice House is most interesting in question and Great credit goes to the owners who spent so much money to restore it as a labor of love. They could easily have sold the property for a good price.

It seems incredible that the city could raise the taxes by $2,000 on a home of this nature by showing a complete disregard for something that is real. No imitation can replace an original. The reason for the tax increase I am led to derstand was because a charge was made for viewing the home.

There is no comparison between Craigdarroch Castle and the Point Ellice Home. The Castle is all that is left of the opulence of a man of money with of the original furnishings left. True, it is a beautiful building and, if I am correct, it is city property.

Now the Point Ellice Home is the finest treasure trove we have left in Victoria if not in B.C. We see the real way a family lived, no reproduction, that one feels they are living in the past years; the house almost speaks of the Interest is said to be fading in possible legislation to maintain public order in a crisis like the one brought on by the FLQ in Quebec last October.

That could leave the federal government with no alternative but to invoke an unamended War Measures Act once again in a similar emergency.

GLOBE AND MAIL EDITORIAL

John Diefenbaker is visiting his Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert at the moment and, according to Ottawa sources, has proceeded immediately to the task of fencemending. This follows his announced intention to run for Parliament again, if nominated in the riding.

Fence-mending by Mr. Diefenbaker in Prince Albert is probably as vital a prairie activity as forming mountain rescue units. The fences were made of reinforced concrete and are probably in perfectly good shape.

Still, Mr. Diefenbaker is a man who respects tradition in these matters — and is respected in turn. Far beyond Prince Albert, we believe his continued participation in the affairs of the nation will be welcomed with affection. In his time he has been praised, reviled, supported, attacked, elevated and rejected — but always that majestic presence has withstood the buffeting. And besides, how would Robert What'shisname get along without him?

The conference, sponsored by the world Health Organization, was yet another attempt to find out what has gone wrong.

The delegates agreed, as others have done, that some conflict between adults and children is healthy, indeed biologically necessary, in order to break out of the comfort and security of child-hood. Adults should not give way too easily, either, for if no attempt is made to no attempt is made to suppress rebellion it ceases to

Junior College Enrolment To Jump Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 16,000 students will be enrolled in British Columbia's junior colleges this fall if registration continues to increase at its present pace, Andrew Soles, provincial superintendent of post-secondary education, said Wednesday.

Last fall enrolment jumped 25 per cent above that of the Sept-ember, 1969, to 12,000 students, said Mr. Soles.

In addition to a continuing trend to higher enrolment, the new Camosun College in Vic-toria is scheduled to open Sept. 1, bringing the number of regional colleges in the province

Douglas College alone, with campuses in New Westminster, Richmond and Surrey, is predicting a jump of 40 per cent to 2,500 students. It is planning a $1.5 million expansion program, with 40 new faculty colleges, the increase may bring a financial squeeze.

Mr. Soles said the spurt in enrolment is partly due to the current shortage of jobs for four-year university graduates. "Job opportunities appear pretty good for students com-

Junior college fees run about $200 a year, less than half university tuition fees, and students often save money on board and transportation by going to colleges closer to home.

Cyanide Spill Contained

"They have made temporary repairs to the retaining walls holding the old mine tailings, but I asked that a consultant engineer be brought in to make sure it is safe."

Mr. Olsen said he was con-cerned that the spill occurred July 12, but that authorities were not notified until three days later.

"Most of the mining industry is aware that it must create a new image and is going far beyond what the law requires to do this. Only a few of the smaller operators are getting into trouble by taking shortcuts to save money."

Mr. Olsen said Mustang Resources was prepared to deal with the spill on its own, probably the reason there was a delay in reporting it.

Skagit Tops Talks Agenda

Louis Robichaud, the former New Brunswick premier and now chairman of the IJC's Canadian section, said Wednesday in an interview that the Skagit flooding question will be a major issue at the Campobello meetings Aug. 24-26.

Aug. 24-26.
Other environmental matters would also be considered at the Canada-U.S. talks but a formal agenda had not been completed.

The IJC study of the controversial Skagit flooding proposals was announced in the Commons in the spring by Environment Minister Jack Davis. The commission began hearings about the Skagit last month in British Columbia.

They had expected that retailers would increase their orders for manufactured goods and that this in turn would encourage manufacturers to increase their production. But these reactions are taking longer than one per cent to $2,520,000,000 in April and held that level in May. The gains were strong-est for car dealers and department stores.

Normally, department stores have fairly light inventories at the beginning of an economic recovery bean economic recovery be-cause their sales have been slow for many months.
So, when they see their sales rising, store managers begin to step up their orders from manufacturers. Manu-facturers have been cutting back on production and laying off workers for over a year now, because orders were layed for a few months because retailers are still a bit cautious. Apparently, they lack confidence that the in-crease in consumer buying will continue. They would rather run down their inven-tories than be stuck with goods they cannot sell.

The retailers' reaction is crucial for manufacturers and for the unemployed.

Some seasonal such as tourism and construc-tion have Mred a lot of new workers in the past few months. But that is normal for the time of year. So far both retailers and manu-facturers have been slow to hire extra staff for permanent

As a result, seasonally adjusted unemployment remains unusually high per cent of the labor for June. Few economists expect to see much improvement before fall.

Japan Ends Apple Curbs

TOKYO - Japanese import restrictions have been eliminated for 20 items including fresh apples under Japan's program of trade

The announcement by the ministry of international trade and industry lowers to 60 from 80 the number of items left on the Japanese residual import list.

"The elimination of restrictions on imported items offers substantial sales potential for Canadian manufacturers which aggressively seek expanding markets," says. Isamu Sasabuchi, executive director of the Japan Trade

The items liberalized June include fresh apples grapefruit, chewing gum, live horses, soy bean oil, patent leather, sodium glutamate, internal combustion engines motor vehicles, parts for ther footwear and wood

Japan by this September, will eliminate import restric-tions for another 20 items.

Due to the shortness of our Island streams, coupled with their rapid and usually canyon descent from the mountains, few are navigable for small pleasure boats. The stream that is even partly-navigable, particularly with power craft, is a rarity. Add to that supreme stream fishing for year-round summer and winter steelhead, sea-run cutthroat trout and resident trout, and fall chinook salmon, and you have a Vancouver Island stream that is truly unique for the angler. Such a stream is the Stamp River, a tributary of the Somass River flowing into Alberni Inlet on the west coast.

Even more amazing, however, is the fact that the

Even more amazing, however, is the fact that the navigable portion of this stream is the upper river from Roberts Creek downstream to the famed Monies Pool at the mouth of the Ash River.

Where Roberts Creek enters the Stamp, a small lake about one half-mile in extent, it is been formed. It is here that cartop boats with their outboard motors can be launched.

Access to this launching area is at the Roberts Creek Access to this launching area is at the Roberts Creek federal fisheries spawning channel project 10 miles from Port. Alberni. To reach the launching area follow the Port Alberni. Tofino highway turning right on the Great Central Lake road five miles from Port Alberni. Just prior to reaching Great Central Lake, Roberts Creek is bridged and the Project Road should be taken. Midway along this mile-long project road a side road on the left ends at a small camping area on the lake where a cartop boat can be launched. At the end of the project road there is a second launching area where Roberts Creek enters the Stamp River.

Creck enters the Stamp River.

Upstream the river is navigable for about one mile ending at a rocky pool which is noted for productive

A hundred yards downstream from the lake the river makes a left and right turn with a set of short but deep rapids at each bend. Both of these turns have back eddies and excellent pools for fishing either from the boat or from

About 50 yards below this last bend, the river flows into a deep pool headed by a short drop and white water. As with the whole river, boats should stay in the deep main run to avoid bottom or protruding rocks. It may be necessary at this pool to walk the boat upstream on the return trip because of the speed of the current. However, this is the only set of rapids that have to be walked back.

Travelling downstream, stay with the main current and then take the left fork where the river divides below the long pool. In this left fork and downstream a number of snags reach out from the bank. However, they will be of little concern if you stay in the main current.

The next pool begins a mile-long stretch of deep slow water ending finally at a left bend, a short rapid stretch and the Treatle Pool. Stay on the right at the end of the long.

the Trestle Pool. Stay on the right at the end of the long straight stretch to navigate the hend. Continue on the right past the Trestle Pool through the short rapids below and then the main run to the mouth of the Ash River.

Monies Pool begins at the mouth of the Ash but this section of the river downstream is not navigable to powered longs.

BOXLA BRAWLERS HIT

WITH FINE, SUSPENSION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Western Lacrosse Association players have been fined and suspended for brawling in a Coquitiam-Vancouver game here Tuesday night.

League commissioner Tom English said Wednesday that Dunc Wilson of Vancouver Burrards was fined $50 and suspended for three league games, At the same time Wayne Bellwood of Coquitlam Adanacs was assessed $35 and

At the first bend below the long slow stretch is the top of the anglers' trail leading up from Monies Pool. This bend with its river bottom drop-off is an excellent holding pool for migratory and resident trout. It is easily fished from shore, casting to the drop-off and retrieving the lure along the edge for the fish resting just below the drop.

The grassy bank from the confluence of the Ash upstream to the Trestle Pool is another major holding area for fish. This is a long run broken by a few boulders and generally productive up its whole length.

Concern has been expressed by many hiking anglers about the ethics of the boat anglers particularly when they anchor in mid-pool effectively stopping any shore angling.

This problem has not yet reached regulatory proportions but, some anglers are voicing for a closure to power boats on the Stamp. Unfortunately, because of almost impossible access below the Roberts Creek Lake this would halt almost all angling in this upper portion of the Stamp. Proper ethics by boating anglers is certainly the solution. However, a closure to power craft below the long slow stretch would also

When I travelled upstream last week from the mouth of the Ash it took 30 minutes with my 12-foot aluminum boat and its matching 9½ outboard motor. It took 10 minutes to haul the boat past the the third-rapid but there was no difficulty wading the shoreline to do this.

Road access to Monies Pool is available along the Beaver Creek road, 12 miles from Port Alberni. At the end of the pavement on Beaver Creek Road take the left fork and then turn left on Barker Road. Park at the end of Barker Road then walk to the right a few hundred yards to the bank overlooking Monies Pool.

An angler could spend a full day fishing Monies Pool and still not cover all the likely lies where the fish hold. The pool is at least a quarter of a mile in length from the confluence of the Ash River to the rapids at its end. Migratory sports fish hold in this pool all months of the year and can usually be seen along the far side of the hend from the steep bluffs overlooking the lower half of the pool. Innumerable boulders and pockets spot the upper half of the pool, providing resting and holding areas for the fish. In the evening leaping fish will never the small but highly productive backwater along the

If all pools and runs are fished during the drift downstream it will take between six and nine hours to travel this mid stretch of the river.

These two boat trins, unique for Island anglers, hold a wealth of promise and an experience which will never be forgotten.

parties, privileges and illegal bonus payments for star soccer players in the Black Sea city of Odessa have been exposed in the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda.

With sarcasm and indignation, the newspaper reported that players for the popular local team, Chern-ments, are given apart-ments, private cars and money 'contrary to all exist-ing regulations."

The newspaper told in detail the case of fullback Viktor Lysenko who was involved in an auto accident in which a pedestrian and occu-pant of the car were killed and two girls seriously injured.

An investigation of the accident was closed after Lysenko told police his car was being driven by the occupant who died.

OTTAWA (CP) — Once upon a time, the unemployment insurance commission was adrudge.

Its days were taken up with rules and regulations and the grimmer facts of economic life—collecting money from workers and employers and paying out the small weekly benefits approved for some people without jobs.

Last year the government proposed a reform of the unemployed persons taking part were able to get those employers with satisfactory programs to continue with story programs to continue with tory pro

Under the new plan, the commission would see that the unemployed worker receiving benefits explored every Hamilton Bus Strike open to him, including the services offered by the manpower department.

There were many other changes. Foremost, perhaps, is the extension of coverage to an additional 1.2 million workers and the increase in the ceiling on benefits to $100 a week.

With the reforms passed into law and beginning to take effect, it is apparent that a main result has been to give the commission a face.

Freed from collecting premiums—that job has gone to the national revenue department—the commission now is training staff to serve as claimant-assistance counsellors.

Their principal aim will not be to find new jobs for their clients but to discover what help is needed and to advise where it can be obtained.

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilagreement this weekend. If it is accepted, it is hoped limited bus service will be restored by Monday.

Mr. Speranzini would not discover a marathon bargaining agreement reached early today after a marathon bargaining session here.

The settlement was an incommended by W. H. Dickie, director of conciliation and mediation services of the Ontario department of labor.

Provincial me d i a tor Jack Speranzini also told of the tentative settlement reached between local 107 of the Amalgamated Transit Workers Union and the Hamilton Street Railway.

The 500 striking bus drivers and hour increase over two years—the union demanded 75 cents an hour to bring the top rate to $4.37 this year and $4.74 next.

It could also cause heavy expense to the taxpayers through expansion of currently inchested rently inadequate laboratory facilities, he said.

Rogers said the June 24 provincial cabinet order affecting diagnostic services hasn't been fully understood in all its implications.

The order was described by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black as a step toward controlling the rising costs of laboratory service under the medicare plan.

It requires that laboratories apply to be licensed by the Medical Services Commission.

It requires doctors to send patients to a public or hospital laboratory rather than to De Wolf said the economics of the government's plans are "crazy' because of the cost to taxpayers of providing new

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States agriculture department has prepared a report on aflatoxin, a chemical known to cause cancer in laboratory animals, in which the substance is characterized as a potential threat to human health.

Aflatoxin was identified only 10 years ago in England after 10,000 young turkeys died after eating peanut meal from Brazil. It can be produced also in moldy cottonseed, corn, wheat, rice and other farm commodities used to produce food.

In a recent interview, the In a recent interview, the U.S. surgeon-general, Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld, said government research has been stepped up to see if aflatoxin linked with cancer and other disorders in humans.

Amazing new automatic toilet bowl cleaner.

Here it is: THE gadget for cleaning - as well as disinfecting. And Mighty Flush does them both. At the same time. With nothing to mix or measure! You just hang Mighty Flush in the tank and forget about it. And you can forget that unpleasant toilet clean-up chore, too.

Mighty Flush has a unique twocompartment automatic dispenser. And that's why Mighty Flush succeeds. Inside are specially-developed, concentrated cleaning and germ-killing agents which are released in pre-measured amounts every time the toilet is flushed. And you'll actually see Mighty Flush go to work, because it turns the water a nice agua blue. So if you really want to keep your toilet bowl clean and disinfected, all you have to do is give it a Mighty Flush. Today.

Here are five improvements your sanitary napkin should have had years ago.

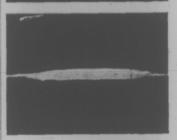

And five reasons why you should switch to Confidets now.

Traditional:

The traditional napkin is rectangular shaped, too wide in the middle to fit properly. That means bunching and folding over. The Confidet is a tapered napkin, narrower across the centre. That means a snug, comfortable Confidet:

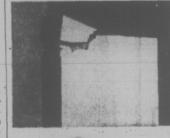

Confidets are thicker through the middle. That means extra absorbency. Traditional napkins are flat, the same thickness all over. So how can they be really effective? Yet Confidets eren't bulky, because they get slimmer towards the ends, see? One more thing, Confidets have a special inner layer of plastic that's bonded in place so it positively can't slip. That

The covering of traditional napkins 3 is soft. But soft and filmsy. That means the material will rip apart fidets combine a strong underlayer with a soft, finely textured outer layer. You get end tabs that don't shred. They fasten securely and stay fastened.

Traditional napkin packages have perforated openings that tear un-evenly and break fingernails. Confidets have a convenient tearstrip. Just lift up the tab, and rip! It's that simple. Traditional napkin boxes don't close properly once they've been opened. That means exposing new napkins to dust and dirt. Confidets have a reclosable lid. Take out one napkin, then close up the package tight, till next time.

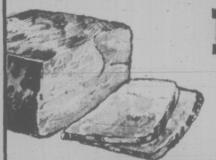

Traditional napkins come in "regu-5 Traditional napkins come in Tegu-lar" and "super" absorbencies. If you have a heavier flow at the start of your period, you should really have both on hand. You needn't bother. Confidets are both. You get the absorbency of a super pad and the trimness of a regular, all in one napkin.

Deep Loamy Soil, Humidity

By HILDA BEASTALL

Perennial phloxes make a fine show of color during July and August if they are well grown. They like a deep loamy soil and humidity in the air, in fact all the conditions we don't normally have in our gardens.

No doubt we would do better with phloxes if we made up a bed with loads of well rotted compost and old cow manure, laced it with bonemeal each year and shaded it with high branching trees on the worth and west. south and west.

At a time when we grew a dozen and a half named varieties of all shades, we found the deeper violets, orange, searlet, and mauves flowered much better when getting direct sunshine only until around noon.

In fact all colors remained without fading, lasted longer in bloom and produced their later smaller side trusses when shaded from hot sun.

Apart from a well-drained situation and a soil loaded with humus we applied two surface mulchings each summer. One during the first warm spell whenever that might occur—and the second as color began showing in the first varieties in late June.

First the soil was deeply watered, then the mulch applied an inch or two thick. It might be partially decomposed.

an inch or two thick. It might be partially decomposed compost and grass clippings mixed; anything to prevent the soil drying and parching the roots near the surface.

Once the buds began opening, watering was done by open hose, low pressure, at the base of each plant; or by canvas soaker laid beside the plants.

The mulch held enough moisture to evaporate around the plants during the warmest part of the days, thus creating humidity. With sufficient water at the roots and space between plants for air circulation, no problem of mildew Phlox colors of today have come a long way from the pink, mauve and white pictured in the herbaceous borders of old books.

Vivid flame orange, bright scarlet (don't put these two anywhere near each other!) dark purple, pale lilac and a half dozen shades of pink from palest apple blossom to rich rose, pure white and white with crimson eye are but a sampling.

There are also some differences in height, so the fronting of a chosen group of colors may be complementary in low stature phlox.

Renewal of the plants by cuttings taken in early spring in much the same way as chrysanthemums, keeps a healthy stock of phloxes for replanting every third year. This ensures a continuance of spectacular heads of bloom.

Never allow phlox heads to run to seed; aside from weakening the plants, seedlings will grow in the middle of a choice variety and suddenly are in bloom at the expense of the named plant which has been crowded out by the unwanted seedling.

Welby is faced with a wry double jeopardy. A patient, Elaine Rossi, is in danger of losing her fight against hepatitis because of her fear that she is also losing her husband, to success — success in business, and success in his fight against alcoholism. When he was a drunken bum he needed her, but will he when he's on top?

BLESS THIS HOUSE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Some of Sid's ge advice backfires. He admonishes Mike to spread his wings. Mike does just that, and Sidney ends up babysitting a budgie.

NBC ACTION PLAYHOUSE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "A Time for Love." Excellent performances by Maximilian Schell, Claire Bloom, Nina Foch and Ralph Bellamy, Schell and Miss Bloom are the love interests, but Miss Bloom's father, a wealthy psychiatrist (Bellamy) is convinced he's only after his daughter's money, especially since she's about to inherit a million dollars. Miss Foch is an aunt who enjoys seeing the father squirm as she encourages the romance.

TON JONES . . . IN COOL COUNTRY, 7:30 p.m., Channel 4. There's little difference between "plain" and "cool," Tom Jones explained, except that cool country is a place where you don't find flies, dust or cockleburs. Joining him in his Utopian visit are country star Charley Pride, singer Nina and English comic Jimmy Tarbuck. There are country and Western medleys (featuring "Oh, Lonesome Me," "Cold, Cold Heart," "Is Anybody Going to San Antone?" and real oldies, "Clementine" and "I. Present of Learnia". THE INTERNS. 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. The Quality of Mercy. This was the pilot production for the series, and the interns come face-to-face with such problems as a patient found to commit suicide, a monk suffering from terminal cancer, and an injured dancer. It was probably the best of the Interns shows

PRONSIDE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "Love, Peace, Brotherhood and Murder." Homicide stalks an avant-garde theatre group. A pretty, young actress is murdered by a heroin injection. Chief Ironside's investigation uncovers several motives and suspects among the group. He sets a trap with the help of a

CBS THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIES. 9 p.m., Channel 7. "Sons and Lovers." This screen version of D. H. Lawrence's novel (mainly autobiographical) is splendidly performed (Mary-Ure was nominated for a best supporting Academy Award and the film Dean Stockwell portrays the talented son of a coal miner who needs desperately to cut-the strings from his domineering mother (Wendy Hiller) and a hard-drinking coal-miner father (Trever Howard)

DEAN MARTIN SUMMER SHOW. 10 p.m., Channel 5. Vic Damone sings "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever" and "Tonight." Guest Don Cherry offers "Cool Water" and regular Carol-Lawrence sings "Up Where People Are." Comedienne Donna Jean Young appears in a skit, playing a movie starlet at a

YOUR HEALTH Dr. Walter Alvarez

Recently Robert Trinka of Medfact Films came to my office and showed me a little device that presents a series of color and showed me a little device that presents a series of color pictures instructing the viewer watching the small screen while a distinct strong voice describes and tells very interestingly and in simple terms that are eassily understood by a layman, about a common medical problem or disease, such as emphysema.

The Mediact company already has films, prepared by experts, on some 35 subjects, including weight control, the menopause, the Pap test and self breast examination, stroke, drugs and thus abuse family planning douching. Medicaer and drugs and drug abuse, family planning, douching, Medicare and several on various aspects of diabetes mellitus.

The films are designed to be used in a doctor's office or at a hospital or even in the patient's home, to help a patient understand his medical problem. The patient can take the small projector and the film into a private room and play it through as many times as he needs, in order to understand well the basic facts that he will need to know.

I was delighted to see this new inexpensive apparatus because for many years I, as an old university professor, have been thinking that someday movies must be used in medical schools. They can cut down greatly on expense, and they may for many years I have also recognized the problem that we doctors often have of not having the time to sit down and instruct a patient about his disease as well as we should, and then, moreover, we could not expect the patient to remember everything that we told him hurriedly, especially if he was a bit upset about the diagnosis or a bit nervous about being in a doctor's office. This situation is not getting better, and recently, one survey showed that the average doctor spends only three one survey showed that the average doctor spends only three minutes talking with a patient.

Some years ago I felt a need for having at least a number of hooklets that I could give my patients to help them to understand their disease and to help them take better care of themselves, but when I talked to my physician friends about this most of them strongly disapproved. Around 1940, the only man I knew of who had written a fine booklet for his patients was the late Dr. Joslin, the great expert on diabetes. He knew how important it was for a diabetic to know how to take care of himself, and to be, in a sense, his own doctor. I cannot remember hearing of any doctor scolding Dr. Joslin for writing his booklets.

MUNICH — Gerda Munsinger, named in 1966 as a key figure in a Canadian sex and alleged espionage scandal, has divorced the West German cigar manufacturer she married three years ago.

Heinrich Andreas Kutzer, a Munich lawyer, confirmed Wednesday that the divorce had taken place, calling it "a conventional divorce." The 41-year-old Mrs. Munsinger was named in a 1966

Canadian government report on alleged espionage and sex activities involving Canadian political figures.

She lived in Canada from 1955 to-1961 and was a friend of Pierre Sevigny, then Canadian associate defence minister in the Conservative government, and other officials.

Government policies and programmes can create a climate for growth. But Governments can't legislate public confidence. Nor can they control the private initiative and enterprise which will finally determine how far and how fast Canada grows. That's up to individual Canadians.

People. A guaranteed investment.

The history of Canada was written by genera tions of tough, self-reliant people who came here with the same determina tion to build something worthwhile. Think of the incredible difficulties that faced the immigrants who first settled here. Read about the Canadians who literally forged this. country together a hundred years ago, in mile after impossible mile of railroad track. And remember the challenge of Expo '67. How many people even dreamed that Canadians could put on the greatest show the world has ever seen? People like that are still the most important resource we have. Unemployment is a waste of that resource - a waste that affects every one of us, at every income level. If we can find enough confidence in ourselves to grow the jobs we need, we'll all be better off for it. As a nation. we'll be producing more and selling more. As individuals, we'll be earning more and buying
